Woman dies in train crash

A 26-year-old Granite City woman was killed at 4:58 a.m. Saturday when her auto was struck by a train engine at the crossing on Illinois 162 about 600 feet east of Maryville Road.

She suffered head and chest injuries; she was pronounced dead at the scene by Coroners Investigator Mathis Ed Morton.

The victim was Nancy L. Mathis of the 2200 block of Alexander Avenue. She was driving with her 16-year-old son, a 1983 Buick LeSabre that was struck by an Alton & Southern Railroad engine. An obituary notice is given elsewhere in this issue.

Two passengers in her car, Jose Briagas, 32, of the 1600 block of Spruce Street in Granite City and Ignacio Ochoa, 29, of the 3100 block of N. 63rd Street, Fairmont City, received serious injuries in the accident.

Both were taken by Granite City Fire Department ambulances to St. Elizabeth Medical Center, where they were listed in stable condition.

Mathis' injuries included lacerations to the center of the head, above the right eye and on the right forearm. Briagas suffered lacerations to the mouth and ear.

The train was traveling west on Illinois 162 at an apparently high speed and appeared to be attempting to beat a northbound tandem of two engines across the tracks, police said. The engines were traveling from St. Louis and East St. Louis to Mitchell.

Her car was struck on the driver's side by the front engine, knocking the auto to the right side of the roadway before it came to a rest facing east.

Willoughby trial begins

By Nicole Vaughn
Staff writer

Willoughby "bolted up real quick" as he entered the room, the young man said. Willoughby then left the room and, within a few minutes, the residence.

Later asked the youth if he attacked Willoughby, or if he hit him, Willoughby responded, "Stop raping my grandmother." The boy said he did not.

"No, you did none of those things ... because he wasn't raping your grandmother," Slerner said.

According to Madison County Sheriff's Department reports, Willoughby reportedly beat the victim's daughter and had visited the victim's home with the daughter just days before the alleged assault.

Deputies arrested Willoughby at his home at the intersection of Maryville Road and Redwood Lane about five minutes after they had arrived at the victim's Mitchell home.

The trial was to resume Tuesday. (See TRIAL, Page 10A)

Half of property tax to schools

By Mike Myers
Staff writer

About half of the 1991 property taxes paid by homeowners in Granite City and Madison this year will go to the public schools.

This fact was 'cleared' from the 1991 tax rates released last week by Madison County Clerk Evelyn Bowles.

The following represent hypothetical tax bills for the owner of a $30,000 home, assessed at $10,000. The tax rates per $100 of assessed valuation are in parentheses.

A Granite City homeowner would have a typical real estate tax bill of $815.17.

Of that, $417.89 (.52%) goes to Granite City School District 9, $129.55 (.1295) to the city of Granite City, $84.97 (.8497) to Madison County, $70.02 (.7002) to the Metro East Sanitary District, $32.75 (.3275) to the Granite City Park District, $31.40 (.3140) to Granite City Township, $29.26 (.2926) to the Granite City Library District and $24 (.2400) to Belleville Area College.

The typical tax bill for the same home in Madison would be $911.75.

Of that, $447.89 (.4789 tax rate) goes to Madison County, $22.47 (.2247) goes to the city of Madison, $84.97 (.8497) to Madison County, $70.02 (.7002) to the MESD, $49.33 (.4933) to Venice Township, $24 (.2400) to BAC and $13.16 (.1316) to Venice Township Roads and Bridges.

In Venice, the typical tax bill for the same house would be $992.08.

State cuts force tuition summer school again

School officials will offer a tuition summer school program again this year in Granite City because a lack of state funds. Granite City School District officials said.

Junior and senior high school students of the Granite City School District will be able to attend summer school beginning June 8 at the Senior High School.

Tuition, supplies, and materials will be $75 per 2½-hour class for senior high school students. Junior high school students will pay $55 per class. Tuition has been $75 each level this year because of increases to teacher's contracts, officials say.

State funds were not available again this year because of education budget reduction, Illinois State Board of Education officials reported.

State school enrollment has dropped to the tuition basis from an average of about 325 students prior to last year to 250 students last year, officials said.

"We had no discipline problems last year because we saw that the kids high school principal Allen Kennerly said.

"The secondary summer school will basically offer courses needed for graduation, such as English, math and a course for those going on to college," said Mike Sikora, administrative assistant of Secondary Education. "We feel that the tuition charged will defray the costs incurred to provide our district with a self-supporting summer school."

Enrollment begins on May 20 for the summer programs for all students, officials said, adding payments will be made at the time of registration and is not refundable after June 1.

Each class will be 2½ hours in length with classes running 7:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. daily.

The senior high program will run from June 8 to June 27. The junior high program will also begin on June 8 concluding on July 13.

Eighteen summer school classes will be offered for credit to senior high school students. Freshman Composition (failures only), Freshman Literature (failures only), Oral Communication, American Literature, Images of Man, English Literature, Senior Composition (Summer School graduates only), Consumer Home Management, Driver Training ($50 fee) and American History.

Math II, Civics, Basic Math II, Algebra II, Health, Physical Education (Co-Ed), and Keyboarding I.

Classes in Mathematics, Language Arts and Science will be offered to off-junior high students on a tuition basis of $55 per class to cover tuition, supplies and materials.

Cuts anger in-home care givers

Many elderly are losing needed assistance

Part-time workers who care for elderly in their homes say they are tired of the state pushing them around.

"I think (state officials) are acting like they want to put everybody else out of business," said Shirley Evans, a state in-home worker whose hours fell from 20 to none because of budget cuts.

Evans said her one client, The Oasis Center of Granite City, can't shop, pay bills, cook or clean his house without her help.

"He has to have care all the time. When he can't get it, he has to go to the hospital."

The Department on Aging's Community Care Program provides in-home care for about 25,000, who get help with laundry, cooking and other tasks.

Evans isn't alone in her frustration with the program.

A class-action lawsuit filed in St. Clair County on behalf of 27,000 Illinois elderly charges that state officials arbitrarily reduced recipients' hours of care to meet budget cuts.

The suit is based on Sylvia Whiteside of St. Clair County, who says the department completely cut her care in March.

"We're afraid others are in the same situation and may have been cut off," said lawyer Linda Zwick, who is representing Whiteside through the Land of Lincoln Legal Assistance Foundation.

She said she got a temporary injunction to stop the cuts for the suit hasn't been set.

Janet Costello, department spokeswoman, wouldn't comment beyond saying "(Whiteside's) claim may have been inaccurate."

In-home care workers and recipients have had a rough time in the last six months. After hours were cut in November, they faced more cuts or being dropped from the program.

Gov. Jim Edgar's announcement that he would cut 3 percent from all state agencies' budgets was expected to leave 11,000 elderly without in-home care, affecting about 135 in Madison County.

In the end, about 1.5 percent was cut from the Community Care Program. About 2,000 recipients lost all care, and most others had their hours cut by a week. Workers who care for the elderly lost about one hour of a 60-hour monthly average.

Of the 2,000 cut, some had received little care, and others had assets above the $20,000 limit, Costello said.

Police work here praised by Haine

By Mike Myers
Staff writer

Times are tough, Madison County State's Attorney Bill Haine said, and there is no doubt the Granite City Police Department is understaffed and underfunded.

"Still, Granite City's patrol officers are out there in the community and they're just doing an excellent job," Haine said.

"We see it here in the state's attorney office in the Granite City Police Department."

Haine said the conviction and sentencing of LaHaywood Whittaker is an "excellent example" of the kind of work he has come to expect from the Granite City Police.

On Sept. 4, Whittaker held up the Farm Fresh convenience store in Pontoon Beach. A witness gave the Pontoon Beach Police a brief description of Whittaker's getaway car and a partial license plate number.

The description was passed on and went out over the Illinois State Police emergency radio network.

Shortly after the robbery, Granite City Police Sgt. Ron Landman

Our Author finds book fair humbling moment

I have a friend who lives at the Lake of the Ozarks and calls himself "Catfish." This despite the fact he hates to fish, no longer owns a boat and, indeed, very seldom goes near the water. He likes the image "Catfish" implies.

Catfish is a writer, of course, being good at creating false images. He moved to the Lake of the Ozarks some 12 years ago, having come into a sum of money, so he could devote full time to writing books.

As a young man, he had written a book and had it published and he thought nothing would be grander than to do this full time. So, for a few years, he lived at the Lake, he wrote zealously. Alas, he sold nothing.

Gradually his zeal diminished. He began devoting more and more time to reading rather than writing. When he wrote, his work tended to be angry epistles to small-town newspapers. He signed his name "Catfish Jones," working hard to cultivate an identity as a "Quaint country fellow."

He began taping and cataloguing old movies. He took long walks and long naps. He resigned himself to the possibility that he might never publish another book, though from time to time, he might sit at his desk and write. He has his own reality show, "The Minuteman," becoming sort of a legend. He took up golf, though he lives 100 yards from a lovely golf course.

Catfish became a truly happy man, content in the knowledge that at least he'd had one book published and people could still read his prose.

What is it that makes it so? It's why it pains me to have to report this disturbing fact: Catfish's book got kicked out of the Wentzville Public Library.

I discovered this one afternoon last week, browsing through the St. Louis Book Fair at West County Center. Famous-Barr has been sponsoring it for years, now, benefit the Nursery Foundation of St. Louis. It's a no-win-win proposition. Folks get rid of old books, a good cause gets support and other folks get great bargains on books. It's a great deal for a reader.

You're a writer, it's not such a great event. It's a truly humbling experience to see the sweat of your brow, your pride and joy, the fruits of your imagination and experience, lined up check-to-block on batt'd-wooden tables, offered at deep, deep discounts.

What do discarded books tell us about the people who discarded them? There, for example, were nine copies of Kahlil Gibran's "The Prophet," while there were only two copies of a guidebook to life for a group of people. And there was a full copy of the Bible and three or four copies of the St. Joseph's Daily Missal (Latin translation) next to three copies of the Book of Common Prayer.

Next to the Bibles was a copy of Hane Kung's "Does God Exist?" I hoped the people who threw out the Bibles and the prayerbooks hadn't done so because they figured the answer was "No."

Thousands of thousands of authors were represented, often in weird juxtaposition. There were Sigmund Freud and Jean-Paul Sartre side-by-side. Leo Tolstoy, here with a full copy of his book on Nancy Reagan next to Nancy Reagan's book on Nancy Reagan. There was the hoodie-ripper "Lace" by Shirley Cochran next to "The Chosen" by Chaim Potok.

There were books that had been great best-sellers, books by Donald Trump, Lee Iacocca, John LeCarre and Elmore Leonard. John Irving and Stephen King. Millions of copies of cotton candy books by Danielle Steel and Judith Kranz. I suppose a best-selling author doesn't care; after all, he or she has already been paid.

Still, I didn't want to find my book there. I imagined that all the copies had been read and reread, and then rejected, in a Ziploc bag, to preserve for future generations. Just because Whitey Herzog is history in St. Louis is no reason to dump his book.

But whoa, there was "White Rat," right next to "White Palace." That's more's what's more, it didn't even look like it had been read. Cretins.

It could have been worse. I found a Wentzville library copy, complete with Dewey Decimal number, of "The Minutemen" by J.H. Jones, Jr. It was stamped in big black letters "WITHDRAWN." Withdrawn in Wentzville. What a fate. I hope someone bought it, and enjoys it and will write and tell me. I'll pass the word to Catfish.

Small businesses called key to economy in state

By Jim Haverstick
Staff writer

State Treasurer Patrick Quinn said Friday starting and nurturing small businesses could be the key to stabilizing the troubled economy in Illinois.

Quinn spoke to about 200 small business owners Friday morning at a conference held at Waltons in Belleville on the economic advantages of the Scott Joint Powers compact.

He told business owners that the state is willing to help entrepreneurs secure small business administration loans from local financial institutions in order to promote new business.

"We need to invest in existing men and women already in the economy," Quinn said. "We have to make sure we don't stand on the sidelines sniffing rose petals while the Illinois economy goes down hill."

Growing new businesses will create new jobs and raise productivity and also get money flowing between the producers and consumers once again, Quinn said.

The state also wants to help displaced workers get back on their feet through Fresh Start loans. These loans were specifically designed to help people who are unemployed because of layoffs or plant closings start their own businesses.

"We don't want these type of workers to be down on their luck," Quinn said.

More than 150,000 jobs in Illinois have been lost since Gov. Jim Edgar took office 15 months ago. Studies have shown that displaced workers are the most likely candidates to start a new business, Quinn said.

The Fresh Start program would loan people who are unemployed through no fault of their own about $5,000 to start a new business.

"You cannot build an entrepreneurial economy unless you invest," he said. "It is a great challenge and it is what Illinois should be doing day and night."

Bill to let new home builders receive tax break is revived

SPRINGFIELD — Revived and revised legislation allowing new home tax breaks in some cities is back in the Illinois House.

Without opposition, the House Revenue Committee endorsed and sent on to the full House a new version of a bill, sponsored last year by Rep. Jim McPike, D-Alton, that was vetoed by Gov. Jim Edgar.

This time, Edgar is supporting the legislation with a number of restrictions on property tax abatements.

The governor said last year's bill was too broad and could lead to abuses.

McPike's new bill continues to allow home-rule municipalities with populations of 10,000 or more to abate any percentage of property taxes for up to 10 years on new homes built within areas of "urban decay."

However, the new version requires the abatements to be reduced in 20 percent increments during the last four years of the tax break period.

Another new feature would limit abatements to no more than 2 percent of total property taxes within the township.

The new bill also sets up an Abatement Review Board with members from each of the affected tax districts. The board would review and make recommendations on proposed tax breaks.

The board could not block an abatement, but would have 45 days to do its review before a city ordinance could be adopted.

The tax breaks would only apply to single-family-owned single-family homes or duplexes.

McPike contends the abatements could spur development.

Women 'at risk' for breast cancer sought for study

The Oncology Care Center in Belleville is seeking women who are "at risk" for breast cancer to participate in a study designed to determine if tamoxifen, a cancer treatment drug, is effective in preventing breast cancer.

The center has been selected to be part of a study called the Breast Cancer Prevention Trial conducted by the National Surgical Adjuvant Breast and Bowel Project.

The study will involve 16,000 women over the age of 35 from across the United States and Canada. Locally, 50 women will be selected to participate.

Dr. William J. Popovic, a medical oncologist and the principal investigator for the local portion of the study, said women over the age of 60 are eligible to participate in the study based on their age alone.

For women 35 and younger, said, the women must have risk factors equal to that of a 60-year-old.

Popovic said the women's cancer risks will be evaluated using a modified version of the National Cancer Institute risk assessment tool. Among the risk factors considered are the number of first degree relatives — such as mother, daughters or sisters — who have been diagnosed with breast cancer; whether a woman has had any children and her age at first birth; whether a woman has had breast lumps biopsied and her age at her first menstrual period.

Tamoxifen is currently the most widely prescribed cancer drug in the world, Popovic said, and it has been used to treat patients with advanced cancer for almost 20 years.

He said that since 1985 tamoxifen has also been used as adjuvant — additional — treatment after surgery and/or radiation treatment.

"In adjuvant therapy, tamoxifen has shown not only to prevent recurrences of breast cancer, but also to prevent the development of other cancers in the opposite breast," Popovic said.

Women who are interested in participating in the local study groups should contact Ellen Parker, R.N., or Chris DeLuca at the Oncology Care Center, (618) 236-1000.

Union fights SIUE plan on janitors

EDWARDSVILLE — An SIUE union is threatening to make sure administrators won't sweep a new contracting proposal through the Board of Trustees.

Local 2232 of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees has criticized administrators at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville for pushing to hire outside janitorial services instead of using SIUE employees.

"It is a priority that the university, and more importantly, the citizens who pay the bills will come to regret. The university administration paints a rosy picture of this proposed plan. But many important issues are being ignored," union representative Peggy Zimmerman said.

Administrators are planning to accept a proposal that would contract out janitorial services to Spann Co. of St. Louis for the Alton and East St. Louis campuses. All other campuses would remain the same.

"Both campuses need a high level of janitorial services and after looking at the possibilities using the university employees the cost would far exceed the current budget," university spokesman Smith said.

The cost of janitorial services for the university was about $270,000 this year. Spann would increase the services, but no further information was available.

Administrators said additional service is needed at the two campuses because both have health-related facilities.

The 10 workers at the Alton and East St. Louis campuses would lose their jobs on the Edwardsville campus under the plan. The university would use attrition to eventually pare the work force by 10.

Union leadership has said it thinks contracting out the services will eventually cost the university more money than it could save next year.

Spann's bid for services was about $200,000 with an additional $10,000 to $15,000 for supplies. Administrators are estimating a $125,000 savings.

"It should be pointed out that SIUE, the State University and at Northern Illinois University attempts to contract out services have been dismal failures," Zimmerman said.

Union leaders said they were concerned the company gave an overly low bid and could try to dramatically increase the price in the future.

There were also complaints that Spann is a St. Louis company. "We believe that an out-of-state firm is likely to hire out-of-state workers," Zimmerman said.

The university has decided to recommend the Missouri firm, because none of the in-state bids was competitive with Spann, Smith said.

State budget proposal would aid SIUE

SPRINGFIELD — SIUE would get a slight increase and under Gov. Jim Edgar's proposed state budget.

Edgar earlier this month recommended that higher education statewide be given about $1.61 billion in the fiscal year starting July 1, the same total as the current fiscal year, reflecting cuts made in January.

The governor, however, left it up to the state

Board of Higher Education to split up the money among various universities and colleges.

Under the proposed BHE operating budget announced Monday, the next fiscal year operating budget for Southern Illinois at Edwardsville would be $60,380,000, up less than 1 percent more than the $60,435,100 authorized for the current fiscal year, including the January cuts.

at 20th Street and Madison Avenue saw a car that appeared to match the description, but the license number was wrong.

Lambert found the car, however, and he determined that the license plate was covered in a way that could have made it appear to be the number reported by the witness.

Lambert stopped the vehicle and 40 minutes after the robbery, Whittaker was in custody.

Whittaker was charged with, and later convicted of, armed robbery. Last week, he was sentenced to 10 years in prison.

"Whittaker was a career criminal, the kind you just want to send away for as many years as possible," Haine said.

"Assistant State's Attorney Rich Parker, who prosecuted the case, requested a high sentence. But it was the excellent police work, that little extra by a patrol officer on the street, that made the sentence possible."

"The officers are not going to blow their own horn, but I think people should know that the patrol officers are out there. And, as television's Sgt. Preston said, they're getting their man."

Group offers opportunities, workshop set

By Jim Haverstick
Staff writer

Curt Kasten always tells his clients it is better to buy a company than to start one, but that is not the advice he follows.

The Kasten Group, a management and acquisitions firm, started the Kasten Group, a management and acquisitions firm, 13 years ago. Now the Kasten Group has six locations in the Mid-West and a new office in San Francisco.

It offers a complete career turn-around for someone to go from being a team player to owning their own business," Kasten said.

In an age of high unemployment among white collar workers, Kasten says he is seeing more and more individuals who want to own their own business rather than work for a company.

His firm, which includes privately owned companies, purchases existing companies. The Kasten Group helps its clients find a company, determine its value and make a bid on the company.

Many of his corporate clients first came to the Kasten Group speakers at the St. Louis University entrepreneurship workshop May 12. The speakers will be the importance of financing.

His discussion will include the different types of financing, why financing is required and how the money is used.

Kasten, who received his MBA from St. Louis University and is a frequent guest speaker at the school, said he is delighted that St. Louis University is bringing the community about entrepreneurship," Kasten said. "Most schools teach their students to be a good soldier in the world of business and don't teach them that they can own their own business."

•Accident

The train's whistle was reported to have been sounding prior to and while crossing the highway. Flashing red signal lights were functioning at the crossing.

Madison County Coroner Dallas Burke investigated the collision.

The train crew consisted of Robert Hatchard, 32, St. Louis, and Merrel Bosworth, 37, of Granite City.

The engineer told Burke the train engine was traveling at 18 miles per hour and could not stop in time to avoid the crash.

Warriors sweep up Orphans

By Dave Whaley
Staff writer

This was no way to treat a group of Orphans.

The Warrior baseball team is it all out on Saturday and blasted the Centralia Orphans 8-1 and 11-2 in a double-header at Varsity Field. It was a rous from the word go.

"We were very efficient in everything we did," said coach Bob Stegemeyer. "This is an entirely different ballclub than two weeks ago."

There were plenty of distractions then as the team lost three of four games and fell to 6-4. It was spring break and disciplinary action was being considered against two of the team's better players. But when school resumed and the suspensions of Drake Marshall and Brent Dipper were imposed, the rest of the team got its act together in a big way.

Granite City has won eight of its last nine, and last week won in all kinds of ways. They won a 1-0 duel in Alton, rallied for a 6-5 seesaw win over Althoff and then hammered Centralia twice.

"It was a relief to see when the suspensions were announced," said Stegemeyer. "We didn't like losing those players for two weeks, but it was just good to remove all doubt."

There was little doubt Saturday that Centralia would return home with two losses and a 7-9 record. The Warriors scored five runs in the second inning of the first game and junior Ben Hicks pitched a complete game, allowing five hits while improving to 4-4. The Warriors then pounded out 16 hits — 15 in the first four innings — in winning the nightcap for junior Joe Rieser, now Bieser pitched only three innings, but that was by design since he was being saved for Tuesday's conference game against Alton, whom he shut out last week with help from reliever Chad Dooley.

"It's encouraging. We're getting all this good play out of juniors and sophomores," said Stegemeyer. "So far it's been one of those years when the

Herman hot hitter despite unusual swing

By Dave Whaley
Staff writer

Bill Herman didn't start the baseball season with the brightest of attitudes. But he's turned everything around in the last three weeks.

Since getting in the second game of a double-header against Belleville East on April 14, the Warriors' junior outfielder/designated hitter has taken charge. It might take a dyed-in-the-wool fan from the No. 3 spot in the batting order now.

He's batting .388 with a .612 slugging percentage, 13 runs and 12 RBIs. That is up again for the East Side Publications' Journal Athlete of the Week.

"To be honest, I was kind of down on high school sports before this season started," said Herman. "I really didn't feel my chance to play again. But I'm feeling better now."

He should be. Herman is in six multi-hit games since breaking into the lineup. He drove in the winning runs in conference games against East St. Louis and Collinsville, then went 4 for 4 in the 6-5 win over Althoff last Wednesday. He capped off the winning rally in the bottom of the seventh. The Herman had two triples and a home run in Saturday's double-header sweep of Centralia.

Herman has only struck out three times. It's amazing for a guy who doesn't exactly have a tempo with his arms. His arms appear stiff and he seems to uppercut everything.

"I'm not dumb enough to mess with that swing now," said Stegemeyer. "It looks like there's no way he can hit a ground ball or a line drive. Billy has been a great hitter in the past, but he can be streaky. So far his streak has lasted all year."

Herman was one of several Warriors who played in the June Triplette summer on their way to a state championship and an appearance in regional competition in Independence, Mo. That experience is paying off.

"We can't be intimidated by anybody," said Herman. "Guys on other teams would see 'Triplette' on our shirts and act as if we were weird or if we had ever been there before. We told them this was our first year and they would just laugh as they walked away."

"You can't let that bother you. We know what it takes to play in the big games, and that will help us in the regional part."

(Each week one varsity athlete from Granite City, Madison, Venice, Cahokia, Dupo, East St. Louis or Lincoln high schools is selected by the Journal sports staff as the East Side Publications' Journal Athlete of the Week. Selected athletes are eligible for consideration as the Journal Athlete of the Month.)

Bauman sweeps late model events at Tri-City Speedway

Ed Bauman shocked the UMP late model field at Tri-City Speedway on Saturday.

The Springfield, Ill., electrician posted the fastest qualifying time, and when the green flag captured the feature in the Clark Oil late model series. His otherwise perfect night was marred only by a brief short circuit in his final race, in which he finished third.

Late model heat races were won by Jim Leka, Bobbie Deitz and Tom Seats. Bauman was followed home in the feature by Terry Foy, Peter, Tom Izzo Jr., Dennis Schwabe and Seats.

Alan Miles became the second

Skool Bandit IMCA Modified Series feature winner of the season by winning a close battle with Don McElroy Jr. McElroy put on a solid charge after qualifying as the main event through the semi-feature. James was third. Dave Jones, Steve Meyer Sr. and Charlie Smith claimed the modified heats. John Hause won the semi.

Jones, doing double duty, won his heat race and the feature in the Mello Yello Pro Stock Class. Tom Rataczek, also a heat winner, was second in the feature while Mike Newton was third. —RICK STOFF

Trojans try to improve times

By Mike Kelly
Staff writer

Charles Steptoe is cautiously optimistic.

The Trojan track team turned in another solid performance Friday and finished second at the Red Bud meet. Madison only won one event, but the Trojans had eight medalists and scored 77 points. Freeburg won with 90 points. Sparta finished third with 74 1/2 points.

"I was pleased with our performance," Steptoe said. "We turned in a strong performance at the sectional site. We held our own pretty well against the teams we'll have to beat out to reach the state meet."

Alphonso Brandon shouldn't have too many problems getting to Charleston. He won the long jump at Red Bud (20-0) and finished third in the 110 high hurdles (16.9). Robert Weather and Cedric MacLean made strong statements Friday. Weather won the 100 (11.3) and MacLean won the triple jump (39-7).

"We're at least three weeks from the sectional," Steptoe said. "I think we're in good shape and distances," he said. "They'll be the top team in the sectional. We've checked their times consistently, and they've gradually progressed."

"Meanwhile, we haven't been climbing. Alphonso went 21-2 in the long jump in early April, but his distance hasn't increased. Our 4x100 relay team turned in a 44.5 early in the season, but our best time since is 44.7."

The Trojans have five people Saturday's Coca-Cola East Ste. Louis Relays and finished 13th in the 15-team field with two points. The Trojanettes, who were missing Yukeithi Gardner, Latrisha Swift and Deanna Griggs, finished sixth at Red Bud and scored 32 points.

Comic opera 'Tutte' at SIUE

"Così Fan Tutte," a comic opera written by Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart two years before he died, will be performed in English May 7-8 by the Opera Theater of Southern Illinois University Edwardsville.

Traditionally translated as "Women Are Like That," the two-act opera tells the tale of two soldiers who conspire to test the faithfulness of their girlfriends.

The soldiers appear to go off to war, but return in disguise as "exotic foreigners" attempting to seduce the women.

It will be staged at 7:30 p.m. Thursday and Friday, May 7-8, in the SIUE Communications Building theater.

"Così Fan Tutte" is known for its peasant scenes and music. "Many operas are known for the arias," says director Ron Abraham, an assistant professor of music at SIUE. "But 'Così Fan Tutte' has several scenes in which the six main characters are on stage singing wonderful ensemble works."

He hopes "Così" is a work the audience can identify with even though some may not be regular opera-goers," he said. "This is a full-length opera, the first we've attempted in our program. They did 'Così' here about 10 or 12 years ago but it had major cuts."

Therapist uses personal story to reach clients

Editor's note: This is the third in a four-part series that will run in your Wednesday Journal focusing on Provident Counseling's 30th annual conference. The theme this year is "Champions of Change: Builders of a Diverse Community."

By Carolyn Marty
Staff writer

Carole Ann Price, a licensed certified social worker, has her own life story to tell — a story marked with highs and lows.

In sharing that story with her clients, Price says she opens the doors of communication and connects with people whose cultures are different from her own.

"Storytelling is a very effective way of bridging the gap between people of different cultures," said Price, who has been an associate therapist with Provident Counseling, North County Center, for the past seven years.

"In my practice with clients, I tell my own story," she continued. "They (clients) see me as a person, not only as a higher, but also my lower. The client then is moved to tell his or her own story in telling our human stories, we connect."

CHAMPIONS OF CHANGE Builders of a diverse community

of a divorced family.

"I grew up in a black environment that was pretty much family oriented," Price said.

"After the divorce, I moved with my mom to Cleveland, which is a diversified environment. I had to become insightful. It was a challenge to find out how I fit in."

Price said therapists need to accept the fact that there are differences in the therapy process when a client's cultural or ethnic background differs from the therapist.

"In the learning and engaging process, there must be a sensitivity on the part of the therapist to the differences that the client brings up part of his life history," she said. "It's important for therapists to listen and hear people."

"Therapists need to genuinely enter a client's world if it is different, saying to the client, 'I don't have the same experience as you.' Help me understand your world.'

Therapists can help themselves by talking with each other and attending conferences, similar to the one Provident Counseling is sponsoring May 15 on cultural diversity, Price said.

"This conference allows us to

Well-maintained car can help owner avoid accidents

By Lyn St. James
Car Care Council

Nobody wants to get into an auto accident. And there are two factors involved in safe driving: your car, and you.

There's a tremendous safety advantage to keeping your car well maintained. Only a car with all its systems operating properly is going to perform the way it's designed to, and won't let you down, especially in emergency situations.

Tires, obviously, are your first line of defense, and (along with brakes) a top priority for safety maintenance. The best brakes in the world aren't much good if they're trying to stop a vehicle with tires that are worn, over-maligned or improperly inflated.

Conversely, tires in perfect condition can't do the job if the brakes aren't fairing the load of fluid pressure, and if the linings aren't replaced before they're worn down. Not only will braking effectiveness be reduced, but your tires will be a lot more expensive.

These precautions seem obvious, but you'd be amazed how many people neglect them. And, when you think about it, shocks and struts, the frame, the bolts and hoses, and the electrical system all are critical to safe operation of a vehicle.

Any system is composed of parts that, as far as car maintenance goes, are critical to your vehicle, your ability to control it, and your ability to stay properly within the umbrella of maintenance for safety. Oil, transmission and drivetrain should be considered in safety terms. Most times, an engine or drivetrain failure is no more than inconvenient and/or expensive, but if it happens at the wrong time, like in the fast lane of a busy expressway, it can be extremely dangerous as well.

In addition to safety, there are several other benefits to proper maintenance. The best brakes in the world aren't much good if they're trying to stop a vehicle with tires that are worn, over-maligned or improperly inflated.

drive your vehicle responsibly, defensively, and with the skill and concentration it takes to stay out of accidents.

The Belt Habit

To be truly safety conscious, you must start by fastening your seat belt every time you drive, no matter how short the trip. Buckling up should be a habit — something you do without thinking about it. If you have an accident, your properly fastened and adjusted seat belt can be a life saver. Just ask any race driver. Many of them, myself included, have walked away from violent crashes due to their belts.

It doesn't take a lot of imagination to understand the principle involved. If you stay securely fastened inside a car, the car's safety systems can do their job today are designed to deform progressively to absorb impacts, and to keep the driver/passenger compartment structurally intact during a crash. And what about air bags? If your car comes equipped with one, do you still need to wear seat belts? Yes. Air bags are a great supplement to seat belts. They're very effective in preventing injuries in frontal collisions. But you still have to be held in place. There's no guarantee that the crash you're in won't be a rear impact, or from the side, or a roll-over, where air bags can't possibly be as effective.

Air bags are just one of several sophisticated electronic systems that are safety-related and becoming more and more widely used. Anti-lock brakes, automatic ride control and traction assist are great as extensions of driver control. They're not magic, though. They won't necessarily keep bad drivers out of accidents. But they can help good drivers avoid them.

To keep yourself and your family as safe as possible on the road, make maximum use of all the safety devices available to you. This should include routine maintenance and keeping your driving abilities sharp.

Owner's manual is key to proper maintenance

What is black and white, seldom read and usually gathers dust in your vehicle's glove compartment?

It's the owner's manual. If like most drivers of cars, vans and light trucks, you failed to read the manual carefully, be prepared to pay for your oversight.

"Nobody bothers to read them," said Tom Walker, president of the Society of Automotive Engineers at Ziebart. "Yet the owner's manual spells out every precaution an owner must take to satisfy the manufacturer's warranties on the vehicle."

Usually, every vehicle manufacturer specifies that drain holes in doors, quarter panels and fender wells must be kept open to prevent mud and moisture buildup in corrosion-prone body components. High-pressure cleaning of exterior body parts and metal underbody parts to remove dirt, mud, and dust-control chemicals is recommended, along with retreatment of surfaces that are exposed to continual dampness caused by humidity from salt-laden snow or sea air.

Manufacturers also caution vehicle owners to wash exterior body metal frequently to remove contaminants like industrial pollutants and dust-control chemicals that attack painted surfaces.

Choosing right repair shop

No matter what you drive — sports car, family sedan, pickup, or mini-van — when you go in for repair and service, you want the job done right.

The following advice is from the non-profit National Institute for Automotive Service Excellence (ASE), the group which tests and certifies the competence of automotive technicians through a series of national examinations. These tips should take much of the guesswork out of finding a good repair establishment.

Preliminaries

• Don't just drop your vehicle off at the nearest establishment and hope for the best. That's not choosing a shop; that's gambling.

• Read your owner's manual to become familiar with your vehicle and follow the recommended service schedule.

• Ask friends and associates for their recommendations. Even in this high-tech era, old-fashioned word-of-mouth reputation still is valuable.

• Check with your local consumer organization regarding the reputation of the shop in question.

At the shop:

• Look for a neat, well-organized facility, with vehicles in the parking lot equal in value to yours and modern equipment in the service bays.

• All published labor rates, guarantees, methods of payment, should be posted and/or explained to your satisfaction.

• Check for evidence of certified technicians, such as trade school diplomas, certificates of advanced course work, and ASE certifications, a national standard of technical competence. ASE-certified technicians wear white and blue shoulder insignia, while their employers often post the ASE sign on the premises. There are over 265,000 ASE technicians working in every type of repair facility.

For a free brochure on how to choose the right repair shop for your vehicle, send a self-addressed, stamped business-size envelope to ASE, Dept. MC-F91, 1350 Dulles Technology Drive, Herndon, Va. 22071-3415.

Laws, technology combine to increase auto repair costs

By Larry Yeager

Recently I was listening to a radio talk show where a caller was complaining about how much car repair bills cost him. He thought he had been ripped off. After listening to what repairs had been done and how much he had paid, it was apparent to me that the charges were reasonable. My perspective comes from 20 years in the business of repairing cars.

I understand the challenge a repair shop owner faces today in trying to stay in business, not to mention making a reasonable profit so he can meet the demands of a rapidly changing industry. To help consumers understand this challenge, they must be familiar with the changing technology cars, what repair shop owners must do to keep up, and environmental concerns.

It would be easy to say that government regulation, environmental laws and fuel economy are the foundation of increasing car repair costs and leave it at that. But a more detailed explanation is necessary.

During the last 10 years, the automobile has gone through more changes than it did in the preceding 75 years, and there is an explosion of technology yet to come. For example, most cars were equipped with an on-board computer to control fuel delivery and ignition timing. Today there are cars on the road that have up to seven computers that control all engine functions:

Grease essential component in automotive maintenance

Automotive grease is one of the least known and most misused products in the industry. Most consumers are unaware of the importance of using grease to reduce wear caused by friction on vehicle parts, such as disc-brake pads, bearings, universal joints and the like.

The following questions are asked most often of Phillips 66 marketers and service station managers in 28 states. The answers were prepared by Phillips 66 lubricant experts.

Q. What is the general composition of automotive grease?

A. Automotive grease consists of a fluid lubricant, such as petroleum, dispersed in a thickener, such as lithium soap. It also contains additives to improve lubricity. The thickener serves to keep the lubricant and additives in contact with the surface subject to friction.

Q. How does grease perform?

A. The fluid lubricant is gradually released from the thickener.

transmission functions, brakes, suspension, traction control, climate control, electronic control lights and turn signals, power seat memory, steering-wheel-position memory and rear-wheel steering. One car has sensors in the wheels to warn the driver when the tire pressure is too low.

Today's cars have become a maze of complex electronics. The value of the electronic content of a 1991 car was about $1,000, which accounted for the transistor radio in the dash, the value of the electronic content of a 1991 car is around $3,000.

The proliferation of electronics has dramatically increased the technician's costs to keep up. A technician needs three things to properly and accurately repair today's car in a reasonable amount of time.

First, he needs knowledge. There are two ways to obtain this knowledge. One is through on-the-job training and the other is schooling, clinics and seminars. A technician who has had entry level training such as graduating from a vocational high school and a minimum of five years on the job, he will need to take a class or two per year just to keep up. For a shop owner, it will mean several thousand dollars a year just for updated training of his employees.

Second, the technician needs the proper tools and equipment. An engine analyzer in 1970 cost $4,000. Today, they cost $25,000.

to $30,000, and that doesn't include a $2,000 per year service contract to keep the machine running and $200 per year for updated software. This same price inflation has affected every type of tool and equipment the repair shop needs. An individual technician can easily invest $1,000 invested in a tool box and hand tools. Many technicians have tool payments that look like car payments.

Third, the technician needs current technical information. In 1970, a general repair shop that worked on all makes of cars needed 4,000 pages of technical material. Today, over half million pages of information are needed. This translates to several thousand dollars the repair shop owner needs to spend on manuals, computer software, and technical assistance.

Environmental concerns about hazardous wastes have greatly increased the costs for a shop owner in the last five years and will continue to increase dramatically over the next century. Repair shops have to pay for removal of waste oil, antifreeze, cleaning solvents, batteries and tires. Within the next two years, repair costs that are all-inclusive will have to buy equipment costing $4,000 to $6,000 to recycle refrigerant.

These expensive changes are mandated by government. The automobile industry must respond to the demands placed upon it by the legislature and still keep up with the changing technology of the car manufacturers.

Larry Yeager is with Training/Technical Services for the BWD Automotive Corporation.

Awareness of diversity essential to therapists

Can Caucasian mental health practitioners effectively work with minority clients?

This question, often asked by minorities, is a fair one that needs to be addressed honestly and forthrightly by therapists, says Larry Davis, Ph.D., and associate professor of social work and psychology at the George Warren Brown School of Social Work at Washington University.

"It's important for practitioners to relate to people with racial or class differences," Davis said. "Clients should be honest and admit that they can't be all things to all people. But there are some fundamental things therapists can do... know the needs of their clients, know their social reality."

Davis will discuss issues of cultural diversity between therapists and their clients during a segment of a one-day conference, "Champions of Change: Builders of a Diverse Community," hosted by Provident Counseling, St. Louis' oldest and largest mental health organization.

CHAMPIONS OF CHANGE Builders of a diverse community

Davis and Ken Hardy, Ph.D., associate professor and director of clinical training and research for the Family and Faculty Therapy Program at Syracuse University in Syracuse, N.Y., will lead one of the panel discussions, "Diversity in Client Setting."

Davis said therapists need to understand the cultural differences of their clients to effectively help them.

For example, the issue of divorce is different for the Caucasian couple and the African-American couple, Davis said.

Statistics show that 60 percent of African-American couples divorce, while 35 percent of Caucasian couples divorce, and only one in every three African-American females remarries while two in three Caucasian females remarry, he said.

"It's important for the therapist to know," Davis said. "I don't mean therapists should tell people not to get divorced... but therapists need to understand the social reality of their client's experiences, not their own."

Therapists should always assume that people by and large engage in purposeful behavior," Davis added.

"People don't elect hardship, poverty," Davis said.

"They are doing the best they can give their life options or perceived options," Davis continued. "No one wants to be deprived. Therapists should look at behavior in the social context."

The "Champions of Change:

Builders of a Diverse Community" conference will be held 8 a.m. to 2 p.m. Friday, May 15 at the Clarion Hotel in downtown St. Louis.

Jaine Escalante, a former math teacher who challenged his mostly Hispanic student body to defy the odds and excel in the classroom, will give the opening address. The subject of the conference is "Stand and Deliver." Escalante also will participate in the conference's panel discussion, "Cultural Challenges in Education."

The cost of the conference is $50. For those wanting only to participate in the luncheon with the keynote speaker, the cost is $25.

Media sponsors for the event are the Suburban Journals and KMOX-AM 1120; corporate sponsors are Anheuser-Busch Cos. Inc. and Emerson Electric Co.

To register, call Provident Counseling at 371-6500.

FRUIT FROM AFAR

Southern hemisphere produce tops off Mom's special day

By Janice Denham
Staff writer

Warm weather brings an appetite for fresh fruit. Although rhubarb and strawberries are about as much as can be raised now in local backyards, there is plenty of fresh, delectable fruit available, even though it may come from thousands of miles away.

Because of the reverse growing season in the south — the southern hemisphere, that is — the bounty of fresh produce comes from New Zealand, Australia and China to today's market for the new and colorful fruit. This is fresh fruit that has not been kept in storage from a previous season, so it offers the tongue a little crunch and crispness that sprouts even more thoughts of summer-fresh homegrown enjoyment.

• Kiwifruit are some specialties to seek out in the produce market. Kiwifruit is ripe when slightly soft to the touch. A hard one usually ripens at room temperature in three to five days. Riper fruit is sweeter. To store when ripe, keep in a plastic bag to avoid moisture loss. Although the skin can be eaten, most people prefer the smooth feel of the inside, so cut the addition of its fuzzy cover. The simplest snack is to cut kiwifruit in half and scoop with a spoon or a melon baller.

• Asian pears have the texture of an apple, but the sweetness of a pear. They do not require ripening, so pick them solid like an apple and store them immediately in the refrigerator. Because they bruise easily, they often are wrapped in a mesh "sock."

• Apples come from the southern hemisphere fresh and crispy, even though they have traveled a long way to get to the local market. New varieties, such as braeburn and fuji, continue to be offered from New Zealand.

The popular granny smith originated there. Barbara Burman, spokesperson for summer granny smiths, says, "Nobody had any desire to eat them when we introduced them about 24 years ago. Green apples were the ones that gave you a tummy ache or you baked. They have been quite a success story."

They are perfect for eating out of hand, but they can be used in any recipe calling for apples. They hold their shape very well and retain the distinctive taste and flavor, Burman says. "They stay crunchy in the refrigerator for weeks and weeks."

She likes to use them in pies and finds microwaving makes a quick applesauce. For two baked apples in a jiffy, she cores them and pops them in a microwave for 8 minutes.

• Apple enthusiasts — lovers of the fruit — eat apples carefully. "I often see them carelessly knocked on the floor, then put back in the pile and considered perfect. They should be treated like eggs. They do bruise on the inside, as well as the outside. All cut apples will turn brown if you leave them sitting around, but granny smiths stay white longer and stay even better," Burman says.

• Yes, there really was a Granny Smith. In 1868 Mary Ann Smith and her husband, Thomas Smith, emigrated from England to Australia. She tended a small orchard and marketed apples in Sydney. In 1868 she scattered Tasmanian French crab apple seeds from a marketer to test for quality and flavor. The trees bore fruit, but one was different and was named after her.

These recipes will become Mom's favorites for Mother's Day because they are easy for her or her family to pick and use. Some of them could be Granny Smith's favorites, too.

Mixed grill with apple-mint salsa

1 granny smith apple
1 braeburn apple
3 tbsp. chopped fresh mint
2 tbsp. cider vinegar
2 tbsp. apricot jam

Core and quarter apples. Chop in 1/4-inch pieces. Toss with mint, vinegar, jam and lemon juice.

Rub lamb or chicken with oil. Season with salt and pepper. Grill or broil until cooked through.

Makes 6 servings of 1 lamb chop or chicken breast with 1/2 cup salsa each.

Asian pear, blue cheese, pistachio salad

2 Asian pears
6 cups mixed, small, leafy greens
1/2 cup crumbled blue cheese
1/4 cup coarsely chopped pistachios
1/4 tsp. cracked black pepper

Core and quarter apples. Cut in 1/4 inch thick. Toss with greens between 4 salad plates. Divide pear slices between the 4 plates and arrange in spiral pattern on top of lettuce. Drizzle with remaining dressing and sprinkle with blue cheese, pistachios and pepper.

Makes 4 servings.

Fruity Vinaigrette: Whisk together 1/4 cup olive oil and 2 tablespoons cider vinegar until well combined.

Quick lemon fruity mousse

4 kiwifruit
8 strawberries

Peel kiwifruit. Slice 1/4-inch thick. Stem and slice strawberries. Whip cream until it holds soft peaks. Fold in Lemon Curd just until well combined.

Divide mousse between 4 dessert bowls. Top with kiwifruit and strawberries. Makes 4 servings.

Lemon Curd: Beat 6 egg yolks and 2/3 cup sugar in heavy saucepan until lemon-yellow in color. Stir in 1/2 cup fresh lemon juice and 6 tablespoons butter, softened. Cook over medium-low heat, stirring constantly, about 10 minutes until thickened and set. Do not overheat or overcook. If mixture starts to curdle, whisk immediately. Remove from heat and immediately strain. Cool and store in tightly covered container in refrigerator. Makes about 1 1/2 cups.

Kiwifruit, orange and avocado salad

4 kiwifruit
2 medium oranges
1 large tomato, cut in wedges

What to do with a teasing child

The following column is provided by Pamela Jacobs, Monroe County Extension Service unit leader.

Webster's Dictionary defines "teasing" as: "to annoy a person by making him or it the victim of irritating remarks or actions repeated time and time again."

Teasing among children is an inevitable part of childhood. School-age children take everything literally. They believe if someone calls them a name like "dumb" that means they are dumb. They have not developed enough self-confidence and self-identity to be secure in who they are. It is so commonplace that, most of the time, it does not really pay any attention to it. However, teasing contributes to, or causes, a multitude of problems.

Some children can laugh off mild teasing or can give a quick verbal retort. Others are more sensitive and become hurt and are unable to shrug it off. Often children become the brunt of teasing from other children.

How can parents control teasing?

Discuss differences as normal. Emphasize the value and individual traits of each and every person. This helps to build self-esteem and self-respect.

Recognize that teasing is a form of attention-getting behavior. Look for ways to provide positive attention without reinforcement.

Discuss the negative aspects of teasing with your child. Talk about how it feels to be teased, why people do it, when it is fun and when it is harmful. Role play different situations and possible solutions with your child.

Make your child aware of your rules regarding teasing and consequences. Children have their feelings about teasing. Remember, it is important that you set a good example by your behavior and actions.

Isolate teaser and teased. Give them an activity to do together. This will allow them time to talk it over and to work cooperatively on a project.

Most of all, be aware that teasing can be hurtful and, by working with children involved, you can turn the situation around.

Drains Run Slow?

You'll never have a slow running, or clogged drain again!

The secret? Clean drains don't run slow. Slow drains, or periodic clogs, are SIGNALS that a

Goob' l i c k™ is laying a

"gook" is choking

your pipes. This gook coats the entire length of your pipe— from sink to sewer, or septic.

Conventional drain openers can't remove this build up. Even a small tunnel through the waste lets them flow through the pipe, leaving the gook behind!

Granite City: Huebner Hdwe •

Madison: B & E Lumber & Hdwe • Pace Hdwe

Now, with just a few minutes each month, you can easily clean your pipes like new... and KEEP them clean with Plum Clean. Its totally unique formula cling, and penetrates deep into the gook. No tools, no liquid, even a small tunnel will clean the entire length of your pipes. It will make your drains run like new, when used as directed. This penetrating action is so revolutionary, Plum Clean is the only drain cleaner you'll ever need.

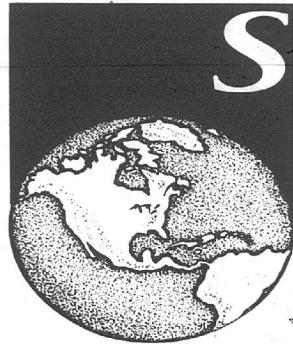

SAVE MONEY. A 1 lb. jar of Plum Clean holds up to 41 drain treatments. Even if drain openers could fix slow drains, you would have to buy over 10 quart bottles to get the same number of treatments. Plum Clean costs about 35¢ per treatment. We don't know of anything that clean drains for less.

Safely. Conventional drain openers are dangerous. They can injure eyes on contact. They can release deadly vapors, in some situations. So can they damage your fixtures. Plum Clean will not burn skin or eyes. It will not release harmful fumes. When used as directed, it is 100% safe for people, and 100% safe for plumbing.

So, if your drains are signaling you, get safe, guaranteed Plum Clean today! Available only at:

Believe it or not, there are some things more important than money. The air we breathe. The trees that freshen the air. And the high quality of life a healthy planet provides.

And it's nice to know that by riding buses we help preserve these gifts. After all, keeping a car off the road helps keep carbon monoxide, carbon dioxide (the major greenhouse effect gas), and other pollutants out of the air. Of course, it's also nice to be able to save money. That's why we want you to take Bi-State's Fare & Air Challenge.

TAKE THE BI-STATE FARE & AIR CHALLENGE. Save money, save energy, save your sanity.

BrieflyDavid and Giants to perform

It's been almost 14 years, 13 albums, and many miles of ministry, since a three-brother rock and roll band from Mississippi began singing for the Lord.

Now, David and the Giants are known throughout the country. The band will perform at Tri City Park Tabernacle on Thursday evening, May 7 at 7:30 p.m. Admission is a $3 donation and the doors will open at 6:30 p.m.

Although the band has kept a low profile, its albums have always been successful. Singles such as "Why" and "Show Them The Light" were both top 10 songs. "Restless" was a number one hit and "Here's My Heart" from RU Gonna Stand Up album climbed to number two on the contemporary Christian music charts recently.

Helping you make the right decisions in a complex world.

CHOICES

Ps. 1: "Let everything that hath breath Praise the Lord. Praise ye the Lord."

Do you have trouble finding something to praise God for? If so, perhaps Satan has robbed you of praise power. I call it power because praise is the highest form of faith we can exhibit toward God. Praise means we are resting in God. It means we are trusting in him. It means we are thanking him in advance of his move toward us. Faith is the evidence of things not seen, the substance of things hoped for. (Heb. 11:1) And praise means we believe we've got something, or something on the way from our Heavenly Father, before it gets here.

So, if you have breath, then praise God. Praise will obligate God to move for you.

Who not try it today and see if you'll begin to reap the benefits of praise.

Have a real good Spirit filled day.

Autumn leaves and covered bridges await tourists in Vermont.

Beauty of Vermont awaits those on Journal tour

Vermont, often pictured in paintings and photography as a symbol of rural America, is one of the six New England states that are visited on the Journal's Grand New England Fall Foliage Tour this year.

The name Vermont is derived from the French word "ver" meaning green. Millions of people visit the state each year. These people primarily seek the beauty and tranquility of Vermont's mountains, narrow valleys and the sense of the quietness that prevails the entire state.

More than 100 covered bridges, most of which were constructed before 1912, are protected by state law.

In many ways Vermont is a vigorous survivor of an earlier, simpler time in the United States. There is scarcely a town in Vermont that doesn't have a white frame church on its village green or main street.

The sugar maple, the state tree and one of the most colorful trees in the fall, reflects Vermont's pre-eminence in maple sugar and syrup production.

The Journal's Grand Tours depart on Sept. 21 and again on Oct. 2. Fine hotels, delightful meals, comfortable accommodations and ample free time for individual activities are combined to give tour members a lasting experience in the history, culture and scenic beauty of the Northeast during one of the most colorful seasons of the year.

For information, reservations and a complete itinerary of the two-week tour, contact the tour coordinator at Traveler Travel at 800-333-5910 in St. Louis.

Daughters of Isabella meets

The Daughters of Isabella, Our Lady of Fatima Circle 835, guest night, presented by Chancellors Josephine Yurko after dinner, catered by Brenda's in the Knights of Columbus Chamber meeting room.

Region 10 meeting presided over a short open meeting. She welcomed members and guests and thanked the members that attended the 4 p.m. Mass March 28 at Holy Family Church. Region 10 officers gave a short commentary on the beginning of the First Circle of the Daughters of Isabella that was formed in New Haven, Conn., in 1897 for the purpose of uniting all Catholic Women in a fraternal order for spiritual benefits and to promote higher ideals within society.

It was announced that the annual picnic will be June 9 at 6 p.m. in the Knights of Columbus Chamber meeting room. The meat course will be ordered and members are to bring covered dishes.

Good pet stories being sought

The first "Who's Who of American Pets" is looking for good pet stories. The new director of this fall lets pets by name along with their biographies, just like the human version.

Pets do not need any pedigree or special qualifications to be included in the "Who's Who of American Pets." Cats and dogs will make up most of the entries, but all types of animals are welcome. Owners write the biographies for their own pets.

"The director provides a permanent record of pets," says editor John R.F. Breen. "Pets definitely have their own personalities and this is a way of capturing their lives in print. It makes for very interesting reading."

For information or a pet biography form, write to Who's Who of American Pets, P.O. Box 2820, Durham, N.C. 27715.

Goldie Coleman accepted the traveling vocation crucifix for the month. Anna Mokri and Johnnie Buhler are celebrating April birthdays.

The winner of the quilt raffle was Julia Nekola.

Vice Regent, Lucille Casan, reported sending two get well cards.

Members attending were: Irma Manning, Josephine Yurko, Anneliese Gyarmati, Johanna Bokovac, Eugenia Stanfill, Cecelia Mancuso, Dorothy Hoedebeck, Martha Konzak, Martha Pieper, Goldie Coleman, Mary Murgic, Adaline Buehler, Anna Mokri, Mary Hensel, Gerda Mendez, Kathy Dohnal, Helen Favier, Olive Sigite, Ann Acquaviva and Margaret Kwiatkowski.

Guests attending were: Linda Butrac, Evelyn McColligan, Theresa Horvat, Anna Czworak, Carol Hendricks, Sandy Schneke, Rosemary Catanzaro.

Next meeting will be May 7 at 7 p.m.

ST. LOUIS, APRIL 21, 1992 --Harry Goodwin, Jr., of Imperial is no ordinary college student. His willingness to help others was proven last October when his quick action saved Patricia Vandergriff from choking.

For his lifesaving effort, Goodwin today received the American Red Cross, St. Louis Bi-State Chapter, Lifesaver of the Month award from Channel 4 news anchor Larry Connors.

Patricia Vandergriff was eating at the McDonald's restaurant in Pevely when she began choking. "I have had these choking spells quite often in the past, but this was severe," Vandergriff said. "The particle would not go down, and I was having trouble breathing."

Goodwin, working at the grill at the restaurant, heard a worker at the counter call for help and quickly responded.

"Within a split second, he grabbed me up and put his arms tightly around my chest," Vandergriff said. Goodwin performed the Heimlich maneuver four or five times until Vandergriff was able to breathe. Later, paramedics told her: "The man at McDonald's saved your life."

Goodwin, 19 years of age, is a student at Jefferson College. He has worked for McDonald's for four years and is currently zone manager.

Vandergriff is glad that Goodwin was there. "I will never take life for granted again," she said. "I sure thank God that Harry was there."

If you know someone who has saved or sustained a life by using skills learned in a Red Cross health and safety course, Red Cross would like to hear from you. To request a nomination form, call Red Cross at (314) 658-2040, or pick one up at a Schnucks courtesy desk.

The Lifesaving Award is a monthly feature of the Journals.

Guitarist Albert Collins is still singing the hard-edged blues

By Alan Sculley
Correspondent

To see Albert Collins play guitar is to hear one of blues music's true originals.

The difference in Collins' hard-edged style begins with his method of picking. Where most players rest on picks, Collins plays with his fingers, furiously popping the strings with his thumb and forefinger.

Even his open-chord tunings—E-B-G-B and D-minor, which Collins, 59, learned as a teenager from a cousin, Willow Young, are unconventional.

These characteristics didn't happen merely by accident, Collins said. They were all part of a plan to be unique, a goal he says he had for himself almost from the moment he picked up a guitar in the mid-1950s.

"I didn't want to (play like other guitarists)," Collins said. "I found out when I listened to their records that I had no identification. I tried to find mine. I never wanted to try to be like anybody else. I thought that out real young."

It's now some 35 years later, and the "Master of the Telecaster" has clearly succeeded at creating his own musical vocabulary.

Growing up in Leona, Tex., a small town 125 miles from Houston, Collins' initial guitar heroes included folk blues players like Lightnin' Hopkins (a distant cousin of Collins') and John Lee Hooker.

When Collins discovered electric guitar, his tastes changed somewhat.

"John Lee Hooker and Lightnin' Hopkins, that was my beginning for when I was on acoustic guitar," Collins said. "And when I went to electric guitar, I was listening to the blues, you know, and Gateway Brown, B.B. King and Guitar Slim."

Collins also had a strong interest in the big band sound of artists such as Louis Jordan and Tommy Dorsey. That influence can be heard in the liberal use of horns on some of Collins' records, including his latest release, "Iceman."

For Collins, the long road began with tours around Texas in the early and mid-1950s. The gigs were few and far between, recorded for small Texas labels between 1958 and the mid-1960s that included "The Freeze" and the guitarist's signature tune, "Iceman."

Collins got a break of sorts in 1968 when he met Bob Brite, the late lead singer for Canned Heat, when that band came to Houston for a show. Brite helped Collins land a deal with Imperial Records, who released three of his albums between 1969 and 1971.

After the Imperial deal fell apart, Collins made an album in 1972 for the unheralded Records, a label that went under almost as soon as the record was released, and then spent the next several years without a deal.

But in 1977 Collins' luck began to change. He signed with the Alligator label, which became his home for the next decade, such Alligator records as "Ice Pickin'" and the Grammy Award-winning "Showdown" (recorded with Robert Cray and Johnny Copeland) established Collins as the label's top artist, and one of blues' most acclaimed musicians.

Collins left the label last year, and signed with the Alligator label, which became his home for the next decade, such Alligator records as "Ice Pickin'" and the Grammy Award-winning "Showdown" (recorded with

Persistent young actor finds his way to Muny

By Harry Hamm

Correspondent

Susan Hogan of south county has some advice for other parents: When your 3-year-old asks, "Where was I?" Luke's now 10-year-old son Luke, starring in the Muny's May 5-10 production of "The Secret Garden" at the Fox Theatre — was 3 when he told his parents he wanted to be an actor. When he was 8, Luke asked his mother again, "When are you going to take me to Hollywood and get me a job as an actor?"

At age 8, when Luke had proven some ability as a performer, he had started singing solos at the Concord Baptist Church when he was only 3, much to the amazement and enjoyment of the congregation, who viewed Luke as a prodigy.

At age 8, young Luke began performing in local theater groups like the Kirkwood/Crestwood Theater Factory. He appeared in productions of "Oliver," "Cinderella" and "Sentimental Journey."

In November and December 1991, Luke landed the role of Tiny Tim in a traveling company of "A Christmas Carol." It was during this time that several cast members encouraged his mother to send a video of Luke to casting directors in New York City who were casting for road companies of "Les Misérables" and "The Secret Garden."

While Luke didn't get any interest from the "Les Misérables" producers, even though he auditioned today, it was his first choice, the casting director for "The Secret Garden" called the Hogan family immediately after viewing Luke's audition tape and invited him to New York for a live audition. They were interested in Luke for the starring role of Colin.

Luke was hired the day of his first audition in New York, even though several other cast members had been auditioning for as long as six months.

"I was like shocked and disappointed when I heard they wanted me," Luke confesses. "I had actually written to the New York company of 'The Secret Garden' because I wanted to work on Broadway. But I've learned that touring is really fun and I think now it's actually better that I'm in this company."
